We, the class of, '77, dedicate this yearbook to Mr. James Scanlon. His support, advice and friendship have been much appreciated by our entire class. For this, we extend our deepest thanks. He will be long remembered by all.

Friends touching each others lives, find their own lives profoundly.

And this band of mutual love and trust grows between them.

to make them a complete person.

They open their hearts to each other
All that they have they give.
All that they take they give.

Friends give unto each other, keeping hopes, fears, small worries, great problems, dreams and all those persons that each love the other respects.

They had confidence sacred.
The sorrows of one became the sorrows of the other.

Friends with respect for the need for silence . . .

....and know when a word
can heal

Not a fair weather thing
this friendship . . .

...for it grows stronger in adversity.

Then friends supporting and sustaining draw closer still together.

Where the Sidewalk Ends

There is a place where the sidewalk ends
and before the street begins,
and there the grass grows soft and white,
and there the sun burns crimson bright
and there the moon bird rests from his flight
to cool in the peppermint wind.

Let us leave this place where the smoke blows black
and the dark street winds and bends,
Past the pits where the asphalt flowers grow.
We shall walk with a walk that is measured slow,
and watch where the chalk white arrows go to the place where the sidewalk ends.

Yes, we'll walk with a walk that is measured and slow,
and we'll go where the chalk white arrows go,
For the children, they mark, and the children they know
the place where the sidewalk ends.
